New Rural Co-operatives in China Issues and Research

ZHU SHUFANG
PROFESSOR AND VICE-PRESIDENT
CHONGQING TECHNOLOGY AND BUSINESS UNIVERSITY
NANAN, CHONGQING, CHINA

Dr. Zhu is a specialist in the role of co-operatives in rural development and is in Canada visiting co-operative research centres with like-minded interests. Her presentation will examine current issues in rural development in China and the changing roles that co-operatives play in addressing these problems. This is her third extended visit to Saskatchewan, part of an on-going exchange between researchers at the Chongqing Technology and Business University in China and the Centre for the Study of Co-operatives.

China's co-operative movement is the second largest, by number of members, in the world, and is currently undergoing considerable transformation. With her knowledge of both western and Chinese rural co-operatives, Dr. Zhu is well positioned to provide insight into the challenges.
